PUBLISHERS' STATEMENT.

THE nucleus of this catalogue was prepared by Hon. NATHANIEL C. MOAK, for use in his lectures before the Students of the Albany Law School — Class of 1880–1, — entitled "Books, their Selection and Use." The "Subject Index" of elementary works, was printed by the students for private use. A few copies were distributed to their friends and the press. Having received several applications for copies, Mr. Moak kindly placed the matter at our disposal, provided some one would undertake the somewhat arduous labor of its completion, arrangement, proper printing, and add an index. This was, at our request, undertaken and completed, by JOHN T. COOK, Esq.

It is a catalogue prepared by a lawyer, for use by lawyers, rather than a bookseller's catalogue. In fact it is almost a legal bibliography. As the "alphabetical list of elementary works," was printed after the "abbreviated citations," a few works which have been published while this catalogue was going through the press, have no abbreviated citation given therefor.

As lawyers are frequently obliged to consult scientific works, Mr. Moak had prepared, in his subject index for the students, a list of those which his experience had shown to be useful. They are retained in the alphabetical list of elementary works, and are also given in the "Subject Index" herein. With a view to bring, as far as possible, the constantly increasing volume of law on all subjects within the ready view of the practitioner, the "Subject Index," was made, by Mr. Moak, as full and as accurate as possible. It will undoubtedly be of great service to the profession and also to the trade.

No attempt has been made to give the statutes of the various States. Those of England (page 264), and of the United States (page 175), most generally in use, are given. Those of New York are, we believe, all accurately given (pages 157, 158 and 159), though as each chapter of the colonial laws was originally printed separately, and some of such are occasionally bound in with the different compilations thereof, it is possible there may be volumes in existence containing one or more chapters or sessions of colonial laws not referred to in the editions, of such laws, given in this catalogue.

The editions named are those now regarded as the best. Where there is an American edition of an English work, and a later English edition has been published, both are given.

WILLIAM GOULD, JR., & CO.

ALBANY, April, 1885.

RULES FOR CITATIONS.

Citations, if not sufficiently definite to point at once to the authority intended to be referred to, frequently cause loss of time and great vexation. The observance of a few rules would greatly tend to simplify them and sometimes give counsel the benefit of an authority which is lost for want of time or patience in the court to hunt it up if incorrectly given. The following rules, though by no means as full as could be given, will, if observed, it is believed, be useful.

1. In using abbreviations never use simply the initial letter. Thus B. and A. may refer to Barnewall and Adolphus, or Barnewall and Alderson; B. and B. to Ball and Beatty, or Broderip and Bingham; C. and M. to Carrington and Marshman, or Crompton and Meeson; M. and S. to Maule and Selwyn, or Moore and Scott; it is far better to use Barn. and Adol., Barn. and Ald., Ball and B., Brod. and Bing., Carr. and Marsh., Cromp. and Mees., Maule and S., Moore and S., etc. So in New York, "Barb." is the usual citation for Barbour's Reports. of the Supreme Court of that State, and in Arkansas "Barb." was, until within a few years, the usual citation for Barber's Reports of that State. So in New Jersey "Harr." was until recently the usual citation for Harrison's Reports of that State, and in Delaware "Harr." was, and still is, the usual citation for Harrington's Reports of that State. H. and M. in England is used for Hemming and Miller's Chancery Reports, and in Virginia for Hening and Munford; while they might be understood in England and Virginia, obviously neither should be used elsewhere. Always make the abbreviation long enough, and definite enough, to indicate clearly what it is intended to represent.

2. In citing a case from reports always give the name of the parties, plaintiff and defendant. If by mistake a wrong volume or page be given by counsel or the printer, the authority may generally be easily found from the table of cases in the English, the United States, or a State, digest.

3. If examining a report of any country or State other than your own, remember reports may be differently cited by the courts of the former than by those of your State, and if a citation puzzles you, endeavor to find the method of citation by the courts of the forum.

Thus in Upper Canada, the Queen's Bench Reports of that Province are cited as U. C. R. (Upper Canada Reports), as the Queen's Bench is the court (the highest court of original jurisdiction), and the Common Pleas as C. P.

If you were to so cite them in New York, no idea of the report intended would be conveyed, but to make your citation intelligent and definite to a judge of that State, you would cite them thus: "U. C. Q. B.," "U. C. Com. Pl.,' "Grant's U. C. Chy.," etc. In England, Coke's Reports are, by common consent, spoken of as the reports of that country and are frequently cited thus: Hoe's Case, 5 Rep. 70 b.; Wymark's Case, 5 Rep. 74 a.

4. In citing a reprint of any original report, where the original paging is given by figures in the margin or elsewhere, always cite it as of the original report and not by the reprint. Thus: The King v. Sandhurst, 6 Adolph. & Ell. 130, and not The King v. Sandhurst, 33 Eng. Com. Law Rep. 90. If the judge to whom the citation be made do not possess the English Common Law Reports, but does the original report, he will be able, if cited as of the original, to readily find the case.

If you cite from the English Common Law Reports and prefer to aid him still further, you may very properly cite it thus: The King v. Sandhurst, 6 Adol. & Ell. 130; 33 Eng. Com. L. Rep., when, if he possess the English Common Law Reports, he will at once be informed that 6 Adolphus & Ellis is in volume 33 of the English Common Law, and will not be compelled to look to see which volume of the English Common Law contains that volume of Adolphus & Ellis.

Thus also: Ruston v. Ruston, 2 Dall. 243, 1 Am. Dec. 283; Clark v. Barnes, 76 N. Y. 301, 32 Am. Rep. 306; Moet v. Pickering, 8 Chy. Div. 372, 25 Eng. Rep. 356.

In order to facilitate finding the original reports in the British Crown Cases, English Reports, English Admiralty Reports, English Chancery Reports and English Common Law Reports, an alphabetical list of the volumes in each is hereafter given. It follows the chronological list of English Reports.

5. In citing elementary works, which have more than one edition, always give the edition cited. If you are in doubt whether there be more than one, err on the safe side and give it. If the paging of the original edition be preserved by figures in the margin, give the marginal paging also. Thus: 1 Pars. on Cont. (6th ed.), 147, marg. p. 136. If the court do not happen to have the sixth edition, the passage cited, if in the others, will be readily found by the marginal paging.

6. If the work be divided into sections or paragraphs, as many recent works are, cite it by the section. The citation can then usually be found in any edition.

7. In citing statutes always cite the original of the statute and then the amendment thereto, if any. Thus, 1 Laws 1870, p. 179, § 1, as amended by 1 Laws 1872, p. 764, § 1.

8. If a compilation of statutes be cited, always cite the original of the compilation by the marginal or original paging and then the edition cited and the paging of that, and the amendment, if any. Thus, 2 R. S. 457, § 2, 2 Edm. St. 477, as amended by Laws 1873, p. 588. If the judge or person looking for the citation do not possess the edition cited, he will readily find it in some other.

9. If the compilation of statutes cited, contain any thing more than the original of the compilation and amendments thereto, always cite the original statute first, and then the compilation. Thus:

Laws 1858, chap. 322, § 5, 3 R. S. (6th ed.) 688.

Laws 1855, chap. 511, § 7, 3 R. S. (6th ed.) 580, § 9.

* The Digests of Pandects are divided into 50 Books; each Book is divided into Titles, and each Title into Laws, and the Laws generally into Parts or Paragraphs. The first paragraph is not numbered, and is usually quoted by the abbreviation in pr. (in principio). The last paragraph is sometimes quoted by the words in fine, or § ult. (paragraphus ultimus). The Digest is variously quoted by the letters D or P, or II, or ff; ff is supposed to be a corruption of the D, with a stroke through the middle, or perhaps of the Greek II.

The ancient mode of quotation was by mentioning the initial words of the Law and of the paragraph, with the initial words of the title. This made a reference to the General Index necessary, e. g., L. Profectitia, § si Pater, D de jure dotium; or, in reversed order, D de jure dotium L Profectitia, § si Pater. Afterward the quotation was L Profectitia 5, § si Pater 6, D de jure dotium; and latterly L 5, § 6, D de jure dotium; or, more correctly, using the letters fr. instead of L, since the passages were not laws, but fragments or excerpts from the writings of the Jurisprudents, fr. 5, § 6, D de jure dotium. The modern mode avoids all reference to the words. It is thus: fr. 5, § 6, D 23, 3; or, in reversed order, D 23, tit. 3, fr. 5, § 6, or, shortly, D 23, 3, 5, 6, i. e., Digest.

*The Novels, or New Constitutions, are explanatory of the Code. The greatest part of these Novels was composed in Greek, owing to the seat of empire being then in Constantinople. Some, however, were published in Latin, and have been noticed by Antonius Augustinus. There are four translations of the Novels. The Novels are quoted by their respective numbers, chapters and paragraphs, e g., Nov. 89, c. 9, § 1.

After Justinian's death, some part of his Novels, to the number of 168, were collected and reduced into one volume, together with thirteen of the Greek Edicts, which make up the fourth and last division of the Corpus Juris Civilis.

*The Law Times is a Weekly Law Newspaper, large folio. The first 17 volumes contain reports of cases mingled with other matters of a legal character. Cases therein are simply cited as Law Times, Vol. 1, et seq. Commencing with Vol. 18 to and including Vol. 41, the reports were published separately, the same size as the newspaper. They are usually bound with the newspaper, either preceding or following it, and are cited as Law Times Reports, Vols 18, et seq. Commencing with Vol. 42, the Law Times Reports have been published in octavo and should be cited as Law Times Reports, N. S. Vol. 1, et seq. The newspaper, still a large folio, was numbered on continuously, Vol. 70 being now in courses of publication.

LAW PUBLICATIONS.

Clinton & Wait's Digest of New York Reports, 9 vols., 1794–1881. Containing a Digest of all the reported Decisions at Law and Equity in the Courts of the State of New York from its organization to the year 1881 Notwithstanding the great expense incurred in this publication, it is the cheapest work in the market. In this respect, the publishers merely ask the profession to examine all the different digests, and then purchase that which their judgment decides to be the most extensive, accurate, convenient and economical; Clinton's Digest, 4 vols., containing about 4,000 pages. Wait's Digest, 6 vols., containing about 5,500 pages, double columns closely printed matter. Price for Clinton & Wait's, 10 vols., $25.00 for the set. Gould's Annual Digest for 1881–3, continuation of Clinton & Wait, $2.50 each.

Dwarris on Statutes. New American edition, with notes by Hon. Platt Potter, one of the justices of the Supreme Court, State of New York. A general treatise on statutes; their rules of construction, and the proper boundaries of legislation and of judicial interpretation. By Sir FORTUNATUS DWARRIS, Knt., B.A., Oxford. F.R.S., F.S.A., with American notes and additions, and with notes and maxims of constitutional and of statute construction. Also a treatise on constitutional limitation upon the National and State Legislative power; with a chapter on parliamentary law and parliamentary privileges By PLATT POTTER, LL.D., one of the justices of the Supreme Court of the State of New York. Sent by mail, postage paid, on receipt of $7.50, the price.

Decisions of all the Courts of England within the reach of every Lawyer.

English Reports. Thirty-five volumes now ready. Price $87.50 net, in sets. The undersigned are publishing a series of reports under this title, which will include all cases of value to the legal profession in this country, decided by ALL the courts in England. The first volume commenced with the year 1872.

The English Consolidated Reports — commenced in 1865 — are published in England in numbers, giving the cases in each court under the following titles:

LAW REPORTS, ADMIRALTY AND ECCLESIASTICAL.
LAW REPORTS, CHANCERY APPEALS.
LAW REPORTS, COMMON PLEAS.
LAW REPORTS, CROWN CASES RESERVED.
LAW REPORTS, EQUITY CASES.
LAW REPORTS, EXCHEQUER.
LAW REPORTS, HOUSE OF LORDS.
LAW REPORTS, PRIVY COUNCIL.
LAW REPORTS, PROBATE AND DIVORCE.
LAW REPORTS, QUEEN'S BENCH.
LAW REPORTS, SCOTCH AND DIVORCE APPEALS.
APPEAL CASES.
CHANCERY DIVISION.
COMMON PLEAS DIVISION.
COX'S CRIMINAL CASES.
EXCHEQUER DIVISION.
INDIAN APPEALS.
PROBATE DIVISION.
QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION.

A considerable proportion of the cases involve questions of a purely local character, and are not of the slightest value in this country. The volumes are expensive, and occupy a much greater space than if only the cases of value here were reported together as soon as those in the series would complete a volume. The profession will thus be saved the time which would be occupied in the examination of cases found to be valueless, and will only be compelled to purchase what is of actual value to them. Not more than three volumes per year will be required. The pages are of the size and style of the "American Reports." The paging of the original reports is retained, and by a citation, as suggested in the "Preface" to the first volume, the Court is at once indicated. Each volume contains from 800 to 900 pages.

The twenty-eighth volume is now ready. The preface to the fifteenth gives a brief account of the jurisdiction and organization of the English Courts, carefully prepared by Mr. Moak, which adds very much to the value of the series, and will prove of interest to every lawyer. It also contains a list of all the judges of England, with brief notes relative to their appointment. This series also contains all the cases of value here reported in the Weekly Reporter, the Law Times Reports and the Law Journal Reports, not included in the regular series. As two of these are published weekly, and give cases much in advance of the regular reports, it not unfrequently happens that the opinion on the reversal of a case is published in them, before that of the court below, in the regular reports. The reporting, in the present series, of cases reversed, will thus frequently be avoided. It will readily be seen that this series possesses an advantage over any one of the English. Mr. Moak has added notes of great value to the profession of American cases of a character kindred to those reported. Many of them are very elaborate.

Mr. Moak's notes include the late cases in the courts of all the States upon the current questions of the day, and render the series indispensable to every lawyer who would keep himself posted upon questions being decided throughout the Union An examination of those contained in any volume is solicited. The circulation of these Reports is large in every State in the Union, and some of the notes of the cases considered in them are liable to confront the practicing lawyer in any case he has. He cannot afford to be uninformed upon them. Several of the different divisions of the English courts consider special classes of cases only, so that they are specially educated to the consideration of that class of cases. All are given in our series so that every class of cases is not only given, but the American cases bearing upon them are carefully collected and given by Mr. Moak, in his notes.

A Digest of the first fifteen volumes and of Mr. Moak's notes has also been published. Price $4 per volume. The contents of the 26 volumes is hereafter given under the title, "American Reprints of English Reports."

Those desiring to subscribe, are requested to send their names to the publishers. On the receipt of the price of a volume it will be forwarded free of expense.

Statutes of New York:
See 23 Albany Law Journal, 146 et seq.
Colonial.—Duke of Yorke's Book of Laws. Introduced September 22, 1676.
These laws were also in force in Pennsylvania from 1676 to 1682. They are preserved in manuscript, among the records of the town clerk of Hempstead, on Long Island, but are in a mutilated condition. Fortunately, however, a certified copy of this record was secured by the New York Historical Society and published in its record in 1809.
The State of Pennsylvania has recently reprinted it, with the early laws of that Commonwealth. A copy of the latter publication can be obtained from the Secretary of State of the Commonwealth on remitting, at Harrisburg, $1 therefor.
The Laws and Acts of the General Assembly for their Majesty's Province of New York, as they were enacted in divers sessions, the first of which began April the 9th, Annoq. Domini 1691, at New York. Printed and sold by William Bradford, Printer to their Majesty's King William and Queen Mary, 1694. Also laws passed from 1694 to 1708, though all enacted during that period are not included. This was the first book published in the Colony of New York. But five copies are known to be in existence. The most perfect was recently purchased, at the Brinley sale, by the State of New York for $1,600, and is now in the State Library. The State has another copy, not so complete, in the Secretary of State's office. The Lennox and the New York Historical Societies each have a copy not so perfect. The second best copy known is owned by A. J. Vanderpoel, Esq., of New York.

* Lansing's Reports should properly be cited as Lansing's Reports. They are sometimes, though erroneously, cited as 1-7 N. Y. Supreme Court Reports. Much confusion has resulted between Thompson and Cook's Supreme Court Reports, which are properly cited as 1-6 N. Y. Supreme Court Reports, and Lansing's Reports being improperly cited as N. Y. Supreme Court Rep.

† Lansing's Chancery Reports contain 18 pages, "reported by John Lansing, Jr." In a preface he says they are cases to which the "reporter" was a party. The title page is "Reports of cases in Chancery and the Supreme Court in the State of New York in 1824 and 1826. Printed by Packard and Van Benthuysen, Albany, 1826." It contains 4 cases as follows: 1. Lansing v. Albany Insurance Company, Chancery, March 26, 1824. Heard by Savage, Chief Justice, because the Chancellor was a stockholder. Reported Hopkins's Chy. 102. 2. Egberts v. Lansing, Chancery, Sept. 7, 1824, Sanford, Chancellor. 3. Globe Insurance Company v. Lansing, 5 Cowen, 380. 4. Lansing v. Goelet, August 1826, Chancery, Jones, Chancellor. We know of but a single copy in existence — in the State Library of New York.

‡ Short notes of decisions by the chancellor, most of them subsequently reported in the regular reports.

§ A new edition of this report was published in 1869, with Notes by N. C. Moak, Esq.

TRIALS.

Under the excellent system of nisi prius reporting, which until recently prevailed in England, and which to a certain extent still prevails in Cox's Criminal Cases, most of the important adjudications of legal points in criminal cases there have found their way into the books, and the profession of that country, and of this, have reaped the advantages therefrom.

The number of such reports in this country could almost be numbered upon the fingers. Many of the important criminal trials have been separately, and more elaborately, reported in pamphlets than is usual in England. After being read they are thrown aside and sooner or later find their way into the waste basket so that after a few years they become scarce and can be obtained only in limited numbers at considerable expense and frequently, owing to the promptness with which trials are moved, too late to be of any use.

Crime, as has been so often said, repeats itself. The trials of Sickles, of Cole, and of McFarland, and those of Mary Harris, of Fanny Hyde, of Black, and of Mrs. Fair are notable instances of this aphorism. The lawyer called upon to prosecute, or to defend, a case, derives great assistance from the labors of eminent counsel who preceded him in similar cases.

The questions involved in a few of the most prominent trials are well known; but the mere statement that a pamphlet contains the trial of John Doe affords the mass of counsel no information as to whether it may be of value to them in the case in hand. Every such trial ought to have an index to enable the reader readily to find what may be important to him; but unfortunately most of them have none whatever, and to determine this they must, if the trial be accessible, wade through a mass of useless matter to the pith of the case, if any. There is room for an elaborate, an excellent, and a useful work upon the subject of such trials, and we hope some painstaking lawyer will give the profession the benefit of his labors in this direction. It would certainly be out of place in a work like the present. Meanwhile, however, in order to afford some little assistance to those who may wish to avail them selves of the advantages of such trials and brochures, we give below the name of the most important, the crime charged, the place of trial, name of the publisher so that it can be readily obtained, if still in print, and in some cases, very briefly, the clue to the case of the prosecution and to the defense.

While it is necessarily very imperfect, and is not all which is desired, it is as full as would be justified here.

Abortion.—Report upon criminal abortion by the committee appointed by the Medico-Legal Society of New York; composed of the most eminent medical and legal gentlemen connected with that society.

C., on motion to change venue 21 Howard's Practice Reports, 149) for arsenical poisoning by injection into rectum, and of same prisoner for poisoning Allen Baker, a brother-in-law, 11 years before. Showing how the remains of the latter were identified and how arsenic was detected after so long a time. An excellent article by Charles H. Porter, M. D.
Transactions, N. Y. State Medical Society, 1862, pages 125–180. It was also published in a pamphlet for Dr. Porter's use.

Assassins of Lincoln. See Lincoln.

Astor Place Riot, New York, 1849. Terrific and fatal riot at the Astor Place Theater, growing out of the quarrels between Forrest and Macready. Quelled by the military, resulting in the death of a large number of persons. H. M. Ranney, printer, New York.

Avery, Rev. Ephraim K. For murder of Sarah Maria Cornell, as was alleged, to avoid publicity of approaching birth of a child. Newport, R. I., 1832. This is a very celebrated trial. When complete it consists of: 1. The trial at large. 2. Fac similes of Avery's letters to the girl. 3. Harnden's narration of prisoner's apprehension, with proceedings of inhabitants of Fall River. 4. Strictures on the case by "Aristides." 5. Vindication of the result. 6. Remarkable instances of circumstantial evidence. 7. Fall River; an authentic narrative. Published by various parties. See Mysteries of Crime, page 199.

Beale, Dr. Stephen T., Philadelphia, 1854. The defendant, a dentist, was tried and convicted of an alleged rape upon a patient while under the influence of ether. Much controversy arose as to whether the defendant was not innocent and the lady the victim of a delusion from the ether administered. T. K. Collins, Jr., printer, Philadelphia.

Beardsley, Alfred, against Mary Elizabeth Beardsley, Brooklyn, N.Y., 1860. A celebrated divorce case. Robert M. De Witt, pub., New York.

Beecher investigation. Testimony and exhibits containing many things not in the trial, 1874. J. H. Paxon, New York, publisher.

Beecher, Henry Ward. For crim. con., 1875. The only complete edition; but printed from newspaper type, without much correction, and somewhat imperfect. 3 vols. McDivitt, Campbell & Co., publishers, New York. Reported on side issue, 59 N. Y. Reports, 176. See 1 Southern Law Rev. (N. S.), 288.

Beecher, Henry Ward. Crim. con. Official, by Austin Abbott. Not complete; only two volumes published. Well reported, as far as it goes, with many valuable notes by Mr. Abbott. George W. Smith & Co., publishers, New York.

Belknap, William W. Trial on impeachment for receiving bribes as Secretary of War. Before the United States Senate, 1876. Washington. Government Printing Office.

Billingham, John. London, 1812. Murder of Mr. Percival, Prime Minister of Great Britain. Defense, insanity. Not very elaborate, though somewhat scarce. Publisher's name not given. See 6 Celebrated Trials, page 102; Maudsley on Responsibility in Mental Disease (Appleton & Co.'s edition), 92.

Billings, Jesse, Jr. Closing argument by Nathaniel C. Moak at Ballston, Spa., Oct. 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11, 1878, in behalf of the people, in the case of Jesse Billings, Jr., charged with shooting his wife through the window of his residence just at twilight in the evening of June 4, 1878. With the charge of Hon. Judson S. Landon, presiding Justice. The claim on the part of the people was that defendant ran a considerable distance into a back lot to an old well, threw the gun therein, jumped into his wagon, standing in a lane near the well, and drove rapidly to a neighbor's. Defense an alibi and that the piece of lead found in the skull of deceased was not of sufficient weight for the calibre of a bullet for the gun found in the well. The people claimed the deficiency of lead was thrown off in the passage of the ball through the skull. The question of time entered largely into the case.

Privately printed. Weed, Parsons & Co., Albany, 1878.

Black, Harry Crawford, for the murder, by shooting, of Col. William W. McKaig at Cumberland Court House, Maryland, October 17, 1871, for the alleged seduction of his sister. Tried, Frederick City, in April, 1871. Printer's name not given. Copies can probably be obtained of David F. Smith, Frederick, Md.

Bland, Mary, 1752. Murder of her father by arsenical poisoning. Faulkner, Dublin, 1752.

Boorns, Jesse and Stephen, Manchester, Vt., 1819. Murder. One of the most celebrated murder cases ever tried. The prisoners were convicted on a very strong chain of circumstantial evidence and confessed the murder, giving the circumstances in detail. The man alleged to have been murdered subsequently appeared in time, at Manchester, to save the execution of the prisoners. By Leonard Sargent, Manchester, Vermont. Journal Office, Printers. See 7 Bentham's works (Bowring's ed.), 68–9, Book V, chap. 15, sec. 2, sub. 2; 5 Law Reporter, 193; 1 Sargeant's Dealings with the Dead, 301–333; Mysteries of Crime, page 398. Wilkie Collins's tale entitled "The Dead Alive" (After Dark and other Stories), was founded upon this trial.

Boston Massacre. History of the Boston Massacre, 1770, and trial of the Soldiers by Frederic Kidder. Contains many authorities cited by counsel as to duty of soldiers to obey superiors; right to fire upon a mob; right of self defence, etc. Joel Munsell, Publisher, Albany, N. Y., 1870.

Gordon, George E. Albany, N. Y., 1865. Murder of Owen Thompson, a drover, for his money. Official case. A remarkable case of circumstantial evidence where defendant was identified by his voice and by his having, on two occasions, one the day of the murder, and again, subsequently after his escape on the cars, remarked to a drover named Genter (33 N. Y. Reports, 503–4), "Haven't I seen you behind a bar?" The conviction was subsequently reversed. (33 N. Y. Reports, 501, where the facts are quite fully stated.) On a retrial Gordon was, by the perverse and strange conduct of a single juror in refusing to agree to a verdict of murder in the first degree, convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to the State prison for life. One of the most brutal murders ever committed. See Smith, Henry.

Ruloff, Edward H. Binghamton, N. Y., 1871. Murder by shooting Frederick A. Myrrick, clerk in a store, while Ruloff and others were robbing it at night. The other robbers were drowned in attempting to swim across the river. Ruloff had been once tried for the murder of his wife and convicted, but the sentence was reversed on the ground that the body had never been found. 3 Parker's Criminal Reports, 401; 18 New York Reports, 179. In his confession (present trial, pages 95–9) he says he struck her in a passion with the pestle of a mortar in which he pounded medicines; that he endeavored to bring her to life but failing to do so he wrapped her remains in some bedticking and a couple of sheets, put them in a large chest, placed some flatirons and the mortar in the chest, so it would sink, took it to the west side of Cayuga lake, where he found a boat, rowed out into the lake and sunk the chest. He insisted (pages 99–101) his child was still living. The present case is also briefly reported, 11 Abbott's Practice Reports (N. S.), 245. On appeal this judgment was affirmed. 5 Lansing's Reports, 261; 45 New York Reports, 261. The argument of Hon. Marshall B. SKETCH OF THE ENGLISH COURTS

AND THEIR PRESENT ORGANIZATION.*

In order to understand the changes made by the Judicature Acts of 1873 and 1875, it is necessary to consider briefly the formation and powers of the courts in England before the passage of those acts, and then to show the changes effected thereby. We proceed, firstly, to show the construction and powers of such courts before those acts, and, secondly, to show the changes wrought by the Judicature Acts.

Before those acts the courts of England, material to be inquired of, were:

The House of Lords.

The House of Lords was, as a general rule, a tribunal of appeal, in all cases of common law or equity, commenced in England, Ireland or Scotland, such appeal being original, or after the intervention of a previous appeal to another court, as the case might be. It was the court of last resort, from whose judgment no further appeal was permitted, and every subordinate tribunal was bound to conform to its determinations.

There was no appeal to the House of Lords from the Ecclesiastical, Maritime or Prize Courts in England, nor from India or any of the colonies. The appeal in such cases was to the Queen in Council and was heard before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council.

The Privy Council.

This, according to Sir Edward Coke (4 Inst., 53), was a noble, honorable and reverend assembly of the King, and such as he willed to be of his Privy Council, in the King's Court or Palace.

His will was the sole constitutent of a Privy Councillor and this also regulated their number. The Privy Council was formerly dissolved by the death of the sovereign; but by statute (6 Anne, chap. 7), the Privy Council continues for six months after the demise of the sovereign, in the "Practice in Chancery," Choyce Cases in Chancery (57–61). An appeal would lie from his judgments to the House of Lords, Second. The Court of Appeal in Chancery.—An addition was also made (14 & 15 Vict. chap. 83; 30 & 31 Vict. chap. 64) of two judges called the Lord Justices of the Court of Appeal in Chancery; which court consisted of the Lord Chancellor together with these judges and which possessed all the jurisdiction exercised by the Lord Chancellor himself, so far as his judicial business, in Chancery, was concerned, without prejudice, however, to his right to sit, as formerly, alone.

To this court, the powers of which might be exercised not only by its full body, but by either of its judges together with the Lord Chancellor, or by both the judges (or for some purpose by either of them sitting separately) apart from the Lord Chancellor. An appeal from the Master of the Rolls or from any of the Vice-Chancellors might be referred to it, or such appeal might be entertained by the Lord Chancellor, sitting alone, in his proper jurisdiction. This court also entertained appeals in bankruptcy. From these jurisdictions an ultimate appeal might be taken to the House of Lords.

Third. The Master of the Rolls.—The judicial duties of the Court of Chancery had been long shared, in some measure, by an officer of high rank called the Master of the Rolls who was originally appointed only for the superintendence of the writs and records appertaining to its common law department, but accustomed to sit also on the equity side as a separate, though a subordinate, judge. By statute (3 Geo. II, chap. 30), passed to settle divers disputes, it was enacted that all orders and decrees by him made, except such as by the course of the court were appropriated to the great seal alone, should be deemed to be valid, subject nevertheless to be discharged or altered by the Lord Chancellor. By a subsequent statute (3 and 4 William IV, chap. 94, § 24), the Master of the Rolls (subject to the same qualification) was especially directed to hear motions, pleas and demurrers, as well as causes generally which should be set down before him. Appeal might be taken from his judgment and was heard by the Lord Chancellor or the Court of appeal in Chancery, as heretofore stated. The origin of this officer, his oath of office and the duties of the incumbent are fully given in the "Practice in Chancery," Choyce Cases in Chancery (61–66).

Fourth. The Vice-Chancellors.—The increase of business in the Court of Chancery rendered it necessary that an assistant to the Lord Chancellor, in his judicial functions, should be appointed. One was accordingly appointed in 1813 with the title of Vice-Chancellor. In 1841, after the transfer of the equity business of the Court of Exchequer to the High Court of Chancery, two more Vice-Chancellors were added to its judicial list. They sat and acted separately. An appeal from the decision of either might be taken, which was heard by the Lord Chancellor alone, by the Lord Chancellor sitting with the Lord Justices, or by the Lord Justices alone as heretofore stated.

COMMON LAW COURTS.

There were three courts of common law jurisdiction; the Court of King's or Queen's Bench, the Court of Common Pleas, and the Court of Exchequer, which, when mentioned collectively, were usually called the Superior Courts of the Common Law, and when taken in connection with the High Court of Chancery, were called the Courts at Westminster.

The judges were the legal advisers of the House of Lords and were frequently called upon by that body for their opinions upon questions of law before it.

THE QUEEN'S BENCH.

The sovereign formerly sat in this court, in person, and hence it was called the King's Bench in the reign of a king and the Queen's Bench in the reign of a queen.

It was the Supreme Court of Common Law in the kingdom and consisted of a Chief Justice, styled the Chief Justice of England, and five puisne justices. Its jurisdiction was very high and transcendent. It kept all courts of inferior jurisdiction within the bounds of their authority, and might either remove their proceedings, to be therein determined, or prohibit their progress below. It superintended all civil corporations in the kingdom, and commanded magistrates and others to do what their duty required in every case where there was no other specific remedy. It protected the liberty of the subject by speedy and summary interposition.

It took cognizance of both criminal and civil causes; the former on what was called the crown side; the latter on the plea side of the court. On the crown side it had jurisdiction of all criminal offenses, from the highest to the lowest; on the plea side, or civil branch, it enjoyed (though originally by usurpation, as in the case of the Exchequer) a general jurisdiction and cognizance over all actions between subject and subject — those of the real class only excepted. It did not meddle, however, with matters of revenue. Proceedings in error might be taken from this court into the Exchequer Chamber.

THE COMMON PLEAS.

By the charter of King John, confirmed and acted upon by Henry III, the Court of Common Pleas was directed to be held "in some certain place." This court had jurisdiction of and heard causes between private individuals — of all actions between subject and subject. It was sometimes technically called the Court of Common Bench. Its judges were six in number: one Chief Justice and five puisne: and from a judgment in this court, proceedings in error might be taken into the Exchequer Chamber. It has always been considered the principal seat of learning relative to ordinary actions between man and man and is styled by Coke (4 Inst., 99), "the lock and the key of common law."

THE COURT OF EXCHEQUER.

This court was at first intended, principally, to order the revenues of the crown and to recover the king's debts and duties, though it had since acquired — originally by usurpation — the additional character of an ordinary court of justice.

It was called the Exchequer from the chequed cloth, resembling a chess board, which covered the table there, and on which, when certain of the king's accounts were made up, the sums were marked and scored with counters.

This court was from the time of the separation of the Exchequer from the aula regia down to 1841, subdivided into a court of equity and of common law.

In 1841 its powers and jurisdiction as a court of equity were transferred to the Court of Chancery. It consisted of a revenue side, and of a common law, or plea side. As a court of law, on the revenue side, it ascertained and enforced, by proceedings appropriate to the case, the proprietary rights of the crown against the subjects of the realm; in the capacity of a court of common law on the plea side, it administered redress between subject and subject in all actions personal though not in real actions. Its judges were termed Barons and were six in number, one of whom was styled the Chief Baron.

Proceedings to correct any error that might be found in the judgment of this court might be taken into the Exchequer Chamber.

THE EXCHEQUER CHAMBER.

This court was a court for the review of judgments of the Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer.

It consisted of all the judges of the three last named courts; and occasionally the Lord Chancellor. In review of a judgment of the court below, the judges of the court in which the judgment was rendered did not sit; so that on appeal from the Common Pleas, the judges of the King's Bench and the barons of the Exchequer composed the court; on appeal from the King's Bench the judges of the Common Pleas and the barons of the Exchequer, and on appeal from the Exchequer the judges of the Common Pleas and the King's Bench.

From the judgment of the Exchequer Chamber proceedings in error might be taken to the House of Lords. The decisions of the Exchequer Chamber were published with those of the court from which the appeal was taken.

THE COURT FOR CROWN CASES RESERVED.

By statute, certain trial courts of Criminal Jurisdiction — Courts of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery, or Quarter Sessions — when the court found in the case questions of law too difficult to determine, might reserve the question and state it in the form of a special case for the consideration and judgment of the judges of the superior courts, and in the meantime postpone the judgment or respite the execution of it as might be thought fit. The question was then considered and decided by the judges of the Superior Courts of the Common Law. This court was sometimes called the Court of Criminal Appeal. It had no jurisdiction of cases arising on demurrer, and there was no appeal from its judgments (Regina v. Faderman, 3 Car. & Kirw. 353; 4 Cox, 359).

THE CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

There was a court called the Central Criminal Court, for the trial of offenses committed in London, Middlesex and certain suburban parts of Essex, Surry and Kent, composed of the Lord Mayor of London; the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper; the Judges of the Courts at Westminster; the Judge of the Admiralty; the Dean of the Arches, the Aldermen of London; the Recorder and Common Serjeant of London; the Judge of the Sheriff's Court there; any person who had been Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper, or a judge of any of the courts at Westminster, and such others as the crown shall from time to time appoint. The crown was authorized to issue a commission of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol Delivery to such court, and the judges or any two or more of them held a session in the city of London, or the suburbs thereof, at least twelve times in every year. The Court of Queen's Bench might also remove into that court any indictment in any inferior court for a crime committed in a place out of the jurisdiction of the Central Criminal Court and order the trial thereof to be had at the Central Criminal Court, provided it appeared expedient to the ends of justice that such course be taken. The Central Criminal Court was usually held by one or more of the Judges of the Superior Courts of Law, the Common Serjeant and the Judge of the Sheriff's Court.

ADMIRALTY COURTS.

The Maritime Courts consisted of the High Court of Admiralty and its Court of Appeal. In Her Majesty's possessions, beyond seas, there were also established courts called Vice Admiralty Courts having jurisdiction over a variety of maritime cases.

The High Court of Admiralty, held by the Judge of Admiralty,—the Judge of the Court of Probate may by a recent statute sit for him—had jurisdiction and power to try and determine all maritime causes, that is, such injuries as are committed on the high seas. An appeal might be taken from judgments of the High Court of Admiralty or the Vice Admiralty Courts to the Privy Council.

PROBATE COURTS.

The powers of a Court of Probate, substantially as understood by such a court in this country, were formerly exercised by the ecclesiastical courts. By statute, however, such powers were transferred to a court called the Court of Probate which sat in London or Middlesex. The judge thereof was required to be an "advocate or barrister," and was appointed by patent under the great seal. An appeal would lie from its judgments to the House of Lords. Prior to the creation of this court the jurisdiction conferred thereon was exercised by the Prerogative Court, in each province, held before a judge appointed by the Archbishop thereof, for administering justice in testamentary matters, viz., those relating to probate and administration and in those only. Its jurisdiction arose in the case (an extremely frequent one) where the deceased left bona notabilia in different dioceses. As in this case the matter could not be disposed of in any single diocese, the Archbishop claimed the jurisdiction by way of special prerogative.

DIVORCE COURTS.

By statute, a court called the "Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes" was created, to be held (when full) before the Lord Chancellor, the judges of the Superior Courts together with the judge of the Court of Probate. The latter was judge in ordinary of the court, and when thus sitting alone was authorized to exercise in general the powers and duties of the full court.

ECCLESIASTICAL COURTS.

These courts had, it may be stated generally, jurisdiction of ecclesiastical questions and an appeal would lie from the highest of them to the Privy Council

THE COURT OF ARCHES.

This court was a court of appeal belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, whereof the judge (who sat as deputy to the Archbishop), was called the Dean of the Arches; because he anciently held his court in the church of St. Mary-le-bow, though this court is now holden at Westminster. His proper jurisdiction was over the thirteen peculiar parishes belonging to the Archbishop of London; but the office of Dean of the Arches having been for a long time united with that of the Archbishop's principal official, he in right of the last mentioned office (as doth also the principal official of the Archbishop of York), received and determined appeals from the sentences of all inferior ecclesiastical courts within the province. Many suits, also, were brought before him as original judge, the cognizance of which properly belonged to inferior jurisdictions within the province, but in respect to which the inferior judge had waived his jurisdiction, under a certain form of proceeding known in the canon law by the denomination of letters of request. From the Court of Arches, and from the parallel Court of Appeal in the province of York, an appeal would lie to the Privy Council. The Court of Arches and the Court of Appeal in York are not affected by the Judicature Act. By statute 3 & 4 Vict. ch. 65, the Dean of the Arches was declared to be an assistant to, and to be competent to sit for, the judge of the High Court of Admiralty in all suits and proceedings in the said court. We have not been able to discover that this has been changed by the Judicature Act.

THE CONSISTORY COURTS.

The Consistory Court of the Bishop was held in the several cathedrals, for the trial of all ecclesiastical causes arising within the diocese. The Chancellor of the diocese, or his commissary, was the judge, and from his sentence an appeal would lie, by virtue of 24 Hen. VIII, ch. 12, to the Archbishop of each province respectively. We do not discover that they are affected by the recent acts.

EFFECT OF THE JUDICATURE ACTS.

Such was the condition of the courts prior to the Judicature Acts.

We proceed, secondly, to consider the changes therein, wrought thereby.

By the act termed the "Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873," and the amendments, the Supreme Court of Judicature is to consist of two permanent divisions, one of which under the name of "Her Majesty's High Court of Justice," shall have and exercise original jurisdiction, with such appellate jurisdiction from inferior courts as are therein mentioned, and the other of which, under the name of "Her Majesty's Court of Appeal," shall have and exercise appellate jurisdiction.

For all practical purposes here (by 39 and 40 Vict., chap. 59, § 6) the HOUSE OF LORDS retains its powers and functions to hear appeals from "Her Majesty's Court of Appeal in England, and from the courts of Scotland and Ireland."

By section 6, it is provided that for the purpose of aiding the House of Lords in the hearing and determination of appeals Her Majesty may appoint two qualified persons to be Lords of Appeal in ordinary, who must have been for at least two years of some one or more of the offices described in the act as high judicial officers, or have been for not less than fifteen years a practicing barrister in England or Ireland, or a practicing advocate in Scotland. They are to receive a salary of six thousand pounds a year. If a Privy Councillor he is to be a member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and to sit and to act as such. By section 14, upon the death or resignation of any two of the paid judges of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, Her Majesty is authorized to appoint another Lord of Appeal in ordinary, and upon the death or resignation of the other two of said paid judges, she may appoint still another.

By 38 and 39 Vict., § 4 of chap. 77 as amended by 39 and 40 Vict., § 15 of chap. 59, "HER MAJESTY'S COURT OF APPEAL," which practically takes the place of the Exchequer Chamber in appeals in common law actions, and also hears appeals in Chancery, previously heard by the Chancellor or by the Court of Appeal in Chancery in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction, and of the same court as a Court of Appeal in Bankruptcy (§ 18, act of 1873), is to consist of five ex officio judges, consisting of the Lord Chancellor as president, the Lord Chief Justice of England, the Master of the Rolls, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas and the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and six ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal, the first three additional judges to be made by transfer to the Court of Appeal of three judges of the High Court of Justice. Her Majesty may, by writing under her sign manual, transfer to the Court of Appeal from the Divisions of the High Court of Justice, that is to say, the Queen's Bench Division, the Common Pleas Division and the Exchequer Division not exceeding three judges in number, as to Her Majesty shall seem meet; and every judge so transferred shall be deemed an additional ordinary judge of the Court of Appeal. Every additional ordinary judge shall be under an obligation to go Circuits and to act as Commissioner under commissions of Assize or other commissions authorized to be issued in the same manner in all respects as if he were a Judge of the High Court of Justice. The ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal are to be styled, by the act of 1877, Lords Justices of Appeal.

By section 16 orders for constituting and holding divisional courts of the Court of Appeal (to consist of two or three and no more of the judges thereof, § 40, act 1873), and for the regulating of the sitting of the Court of Appeal and of the divisional Courts of Appeal may be made and rescinded by the President of the Court of Appeal, with the concurrence of the ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal or any three of them. No judge of the Court of Appeal shall sit as a judge, on the hearing of an appeal from any judgment or order made by himself or made by any divisional court of the High Court of which he was and is a member. Every appeal to the Court of Appeal from a final determination must be heard by at least three judges, and from an interlocutory order by not less than two.

THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE consisted of five divisions as follows:

1. The CHANCERY DIVISION, consisting of the Lord Chancellor, who shall be President, the Master of the Rolls, and the Vice-Chancellors of the Court of Chancery, or such of them as shall not be appointed ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal. By an act passed April 24, 1877 (12 L. J. 251), a new judge to be in the same position as if he had been appointed a puisne judge of the High Court under the Supreme Court of Judicature Acts (1873 and 1875) was to be appointed. He is to be attached to the Chancery Division. The puisne judges are to be styled Justices of the High Court.

By section 3 of the act of 1875, the Lord Chancellor is not to be deemed to be a permanent judge of the High Court of Justice.

2. The QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION, consisting of the Lord Chief Justice of England, who shall be President, and such of the other judges of the Court of Queen's Bench as shall not be appointed ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal.

3. The COMMON PLEAS DIVISION, consisting of the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, who shall be President thereof, and such of the other judges of the Court of Common Pleas as shall not be appointed ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal.

4. The EXCHEQUER DIVISION, consisting of the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, who shall be President thereof, and such of the Barons of the Court of Exchequer as shall not be appointed ordinary judges of the Court of Appeal.

Divisional courts of the High Court of Justice may be held for the transaction of any business which may for the time being be ordered by rules of any court to be heard by a divisional court to be constituted of two of the judges of the court and no more unless the President of the Division to which such divisional court belongs, with the concurrence of the other judges of such Division, or a majority thereof, is of opinion that such divisional court should be constituted of a greater number of judges than two, in which case such court shall be constituted of such number of judges as the President, with such concurrence as aforesaid, may think expedient. By section 32 of the Judicature act of 1873 the Queen, by order in council, was authorized to reduce the number of divisions of the High Court and to provide for the abolition of the offices of Chief Justice of the Common Pleas and Chief Baron of the Exchequer. Commencing January 1, 1881, the Queen's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer divisions were consolidated into one division called the Queen's Bench Division, the offices of Chief Justice of the three were abolished and a Chief Justice of the consolidated division (Sir John Duke Coleridge) appointed with the title of the "Lord Chief Justice of England."

CROWN CASES RESERVED, under 11 and 12 Vict., chap. 78 and amendments, are (§ 48) to be heard by the judges of the High Court of Justice, or five of them at the least, of whom the Lord Chief Justice of England, the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, or one of such chiefs at least, shall be part. Their determination is final and without appeal save for some error of law upon the record as to which no question shall have been reserved for the consideration of said judges under 11 and 12 Vict. Its decisions are reported with those of the Queen's Bench Division.

5. The PROBATE, DIVORCE, AND ADMIRALTY DIVISION, consisting of two judges, one of whom shall be the Judge of the Court of Probate and of the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes and the Judge of the High Court of Admiralty. The Judge of the Court of Probate shall be the President of the said Division and, subject thereto, the senior judge of the said Division.

The series of reports, commencing January 1, 1876, and ending January 1, 1881, in Alphabetical order, is as follows:

APPEAL CASES. Cases decided by the House of Lords and Privy Council.

CHANCERY DIVISION. Cases decided by that Division.

COMMON PLEAS DIVISION. Cases decided by that Division.

EXCHEQUER DIVISION. Cases decided by that Division.

PROBATE DIVISION. Cases decided by the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division.

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION. Cases decided by that Division, and also Crown Cases Reserved.

The cases decided by the COURT OF APPEAL are reported with the cases of the Division from which the appeal was taken.

They are indicated at the head as, "In the Court of Appeal," or by the letters "C.A."

The different reports are quoted as follows:

1 Appeal Cases, or 1 App. Cas.
1 Chancery Division, or 1 Ch. Div.
1 Common Pleas Division, or 1 C. P. Div.
1 Exchequer Division, or 1 Ex. Div.
1 Probate Division, or 1 P. Div.
1 Queen's Bench Division, or 1 Q. B. Div.

Since the consolidation of the Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer Division, January 1, 1881, the three divisions are reported together in one series called the "Queen's Bench Division," the numbers of that division being continued, and the volume for 1881 numbered "6," and quoted as "6 Q. B. Div." All the divisions except Common Pleas and Exchequer are continued.

‡ Book of Judgments: As they were upon solemn arguments given in the Upper Bench and Common Pleas, upon the most difficult points in all manner of actions. Small 8vo. London, 1655

"A second in real, personal and mixt actions, and upon the statute." The compiler (George Tounsend) in his preface says: "I stile this a second book of judgments, there being a former book of judgments in English, published in the year 1655." Small 4to. London, 1675.

This "Second Book of Judgments" seems not to have been known to Wallace or "Marvin."

The Times Law Reports

The Law Times is a Weekly Law Newspaper, large folio. The first 17 volumes contain reports of cases mingled with other matters of a legal character. Cases therein are simply cited as Law Times, vol. 1 et seq. Commencing with vol. 18 to and including vol. 41, the reports were published separately, the same size as the newspaper. They are usually bound with the newspaper, either preceding or following it, and are cited as Law Times Reports, Vols. 18, et seq. Commencing with vol. 42, the Law Times Reports have been published in octavo and should be cited as Law Times Reports (N. S.), vol. 1, et seq. The newspaper, still a large folio, was numbered on continuously, vol. 70 being now in course of publication.

* The Indian Jurist, new series, is a continuation of the Madras Jurist.

Mr. Charles C. Soule, of Boston, informs Mr. Moak that he ascertained from the Librarian of the East Indian office in London, the meaning of the terms used in the Indian Reports to be as follows:

1. Sudder, Chief or Supreme.
2. Dewanny, Civil.
3. Nizamut, Criminal.
4. Adawlut, } Court.
5. Udalet, }
6. Zillah, District or County.
7. Foujdaree, Police Magistrate or Petty Sessions. Criminal

And such Mr. Moak understands, though not expressly so stated, from Cowell's History of the Courts of India.
